

Article 1. Ming Chuan University established the following procedures in order to cultivate a spirit of serving and social responsibility, to enhance students' ability to work as a team and to solve problems, and to combine professional knowledge and community service experience. Through this process the MCU educational philosophy of "Honesty, Modesty, Respect, and Fortitude" will be achieved.

Article 2. Service-Learning at Ming Chuan University is divided into two types, course-based, and recognition-based. In the case of course-based Service-Learning, each teaching unit plans professional courses with Service-Learning content (also called professional Service-Learning courses) for students to select. The complete teaching plan, syllabus, Service-Learning content and methodology must be sent to the Student Affairs Division for reference within one month of the beginning of the semester. In the case of recognition-based Service-Learning, recognition will be granted by the Student Affairs Division based on students' performance community service through clubs or service in activities on and off campus. Implementation procedures will be established by the Student Affairs Division.

Article 3. Students of Ming Chuan University may choose from course-based or recognition-based Service-Learning.

Article 4. Service-Learning at MCU must include 16 hours of service, an one-hour on-campus Service-Learning seminar, one hour of reflection, and a fair which shares results.

Article 5. First-year students who entered MCU in the 2008-9 academic year (including first-year returning students) are required to participate in the Service-Learning program and may only graduate after completing the items outlined in Article 4. Students classified as special cases may file applications to adjust Service-Learning methods in accordance with their personal situations.

Article 6. All units may recommend students with strong Service-Learning performance and faculty members with excellence in teaching related to Service-Learning for recognition in appropriate occasions.

Article 7. Student performance in Service-Learning may be used as reference for MCU scholarship and work-study applications on campus.
